ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATED BY DOWNTOWN PARADE

Following This, Patriotic Meeting Is Opened in Coliseum at 11 A. M., the Hour Fighting Ceased.

NOT COMPARABLE TO SCENES YEAR AGO

Ranks of Marchers Are Representative and Well Organized, but Spontaneous Holiday Spirit Is Lacking.

Armistice day, first anniversary of the end of hostilities on the west front, was celebrated this morning with a downtown parade, representing many branches of St. Louis' effort toward winning the war, and with a patriotic meeting in the Coliseum. This exercise began a few minutes after 11 a. m., the hour at which the armistice went into effect Nov. 11, 1918. The Coliseum was nearly filled.

Fluttering bits of paper thrown from windows, filled the air as the parade moved past the Old Street office buildings. In the crowd, signs which showed流了 of glee were the chief points of likeness between this Armistice day and the original one of a year ago.

The parade, which was 23 minutes in passing, was well organized and representative, in contrast with the impromptu and picked-up lines which were jazzing their way about a year ago. But the crowd in the streets today was not to be compared, either in numbers or in noise, with the joyous mass which filled sidewalks and pavements on that other Nov. 11.

Sidewalks Well Filled.

During the parade, which started east on Washington avenue from Twelfth street shortly before 9 o'clock, the sidewalks were well filled. Windows along the route were also filled, showing that business employees were not on holiday, as they were a year ago. City employees, school children have holiday, and many service men have been especially except for the day by their employers, but banks and stores are carrying on business as usual.

Street peddlars offered flags, balloons, horns and noise-making devices, but the market was poor. Decorations were lacking, except for large flags on some stores and office buildings.

But this contrast was noticed only by the stay-at-homes of the winter period. The men of the American Legion were thinking not of the celebration of a year ago in city streets but of the last shot fired at the Germans, and of the cheer that went up from the American lines at the moment of the enemy's surrender.

Today these men were back in civilian clothing, and Captains and Lieutenants were marching beside privates, with no distinction of their former rank. "Back on the job," said badges which were worn by many of them.

Led by Barracks Band.

The Jefferson Barracks Band and several companies of infantry from the barracks led the parade line. A band made up partly from the former Home Guard Band preceded the officers of the American Legion, who were on foot.

Foch on Armistice Day
Says American Spirit
Gives Hope for Future

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch.

SITTING before a littered soft pine flat topped table, at the Hotel des Invalides, with "scratches" pen Marshal Ferdinand Foch, who just a year ago superintended the great drive which ended the world war, wrote an Armistice day message to the American people:

"On the occasion of the first anniversary of the armistice we cannot forget the generous aid and energetic co-operation brought by America to the common cause. The enthusiasm with which the Americans answered our call and their heroism on the battlefields of France were many of them have fallen silent in the trenches, may weaken their fidelity to our ideal and give for the future the assurance of union which alone can guarantee us the benefits of peace won at the price of such heavy sacrifices."

"We owe so much to America," Marshal Foch declared. "Tell them that my heartfelt wish is that the bonds of love and friendship which held us together in the war will strengthen you all the more in the future. We realize how essential to our victory just a year ago was the aid of America and the hundreds of thousands of troops she poured into France each month."

PRINCE OF WALES IS WELCOMED AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

Vice President Marshall, Gen-

PRINCE TO CALL AT WHITE HOUSE TODAY

Probably Will Visit President in Sick Room—Will Remain in Washington for Three Days.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Albert Edward, Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, arrived in Washington today to be welcomed by Vice President Marshall, acting for President Wilson. Reception ceremonies at the Union Station were informal, although Cabinet officers and high officers of the army and navy were gathered to greet the youthful visitor, who will spend three days in the national capital before visiting New York on his way home.

A drizzling rain did not prevent the gathering of interested crowds along the route over which the Prince and his party, preceded by a cavalry escort, passed to the Perry Belmont home, reserved for the distinguished visitor. After luncheon, the Prince was to call on Mrs. Wilson at the White House, and it was expected he would see the President in his sick room.

On the return from the station the Prince passed the square where the formal exercises in connection with the formation of the Armistice day were in progress, despite the rain.

Go to Special Car.

Vice President Marshall, the Cabinet members, Gen. Pershing, Gen. March, Admiral Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, and the other American officials moved out through the rain to the steps of the Prince's special car, while Viscount Grey, Minister of War, and his staff from the embassy, halted a few yards up the platform.

As the Prince stepped from the train, clad in the uniform of his rank in the British army, Mr. Marshall stepped forward and they clasped hands. Wahtever the Vice President said did not go beyond the ears of the Prince, nor was the Prince's reply audible. Mr. Marshall introduced the members of the Cabinet. The Prince stepped forward with a smile, and the group around him, Gen. Pershing's smiling face over the shoulders of those around him. They shook hands vigorously, then the royal visitor was introduced to Gen. March and the other American officers.

Armed with the Vice President, the Prince walked up the platform, to halt at Viscount Gray advanced to greet him. The British party were introduced, the whole group of officials, American and English, without thought of formalities, passed on into the big station building, where a short welcome greeted the first sight of the boyish figure walking with the boys in the lobby.

RESERVATION ON ARTICLE 10 TO BE ADOPTED TODAY

Attempts to Change Committee's Clause Fails in All-Day Discussion in the Senate.

HITCHCOCK SAYS IT DESTROYS ARTICLE

Democratic Proposal to Release Other Nations From Obligations Almost Splits the Republicans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—With a vote imminent on the Foreign Relations Committee amendment to article 10 of the league of nations covenant, the adoption of which President Wilson has characterized as a virtual rejection of the treaty, Senate administration leaders today rallied their forces for the final stand.

Unless a break came in the ranks of opponents to the league of nations, adoption of the reservation seemed assured. The reservation stood up yesterday under repeated onslaughts by supporters of the league and was before the Senate unaltered from the form in which it came from the committee.

The reservation provides that under article 10, which pledges members to preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and political independence of all other members, the United States shall assume no obligation to use its naval or military forces except on express authorization of Congress in every specific case.

Senator Hitchcock, Democratic leader, declared that if the reservation were adopted there would be no article 10. He added there would be no objection on the part of the Democrats if President Wilson to a reservation saying the United States could not make war without action by Congress, but there was objection to the declaration "assumes no obligation."

Democratic Proposal Yesterday Al-most Split Republicans.

Just before adjournment yesterday the United Republican forces, backing the reservation almost were split by a Democratic proposal to make the qualification even more sweeping than it is. But the Republican leaders soon recovered their hold on the situation and declared that dangers of amending the committee draft had passed.

The amendment on which the Republicans momentarily divided was introduced by Senator Walsh, Democrat of Montana, a staunch administration supporter and would have voted to the reservation a proviso that the United States "releases all members of the league from any obligation to it under article 10, and declines to participate in any proceedings by the council authorized thereby."

Republicans of the group irreconcilably opposed to the treaty quickly displayed their pleasure over the possibility of writing such a provision into the treaty: "Three of them, Senator Borah of Idaho, Fall of New Mexico and McCormick of Illinois, announced they would support the proposal and a mild reservationist that side of the chamber tumbled into a hurried conference at the likelihood that it would prevail.

After some discussion, the irreconcilables, however, became suspicious that the Democrats intended to vote against ratification of the treaty once the reservations were attached, had set but to make the qualifications as mild as possible. Senator Fall withdrew his previous announcement pronouncing the proposed amendment a "trick," and the Senate adjourned without a vote, but with the Republican forces apparently again solidified.

"Mild" Proposal Defeated.

In the session the Democrats had made another unsuccessful effort to break into the Republican ranks by proposing as a substitute for the committee's reservation one which would exclude the United States from participation in Article 10. It got no support from the administration Senators or the mild reservationists, and was rejected, 45 to 28, with the following Senators voting for it:

Democrats—Borah, Brandege, Cummings, Fall, Fernand, Frantz, Griggs, Johnson, La Follette, McCormick, McLean, Moses, New, Norris, Penrose and Sherman.

Democrats—Gore and Reed.

During the debate on Senator Wilson's proposal, Democratic Leader Hitchcock bitterly denounced the committee's reservation, and declared that if it were adopted "there will be no Article 10." He said the obnoxious feature was the "obligation" that the United States "assumes no obligation" except in

Wets Win in Ohio by 641 on the Complete Returns

Official Figures Show Total of 500,520 Against Ratification—Drys Take Steps to Obtain Recount.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11.—Ohio last Tuesday voted against ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment by a majority of 641, according to complete official returns received today by the Secretary of State. The vote was: For ratification, 499,873; against ratification, 500,520.

Secretary of State Smith announced that some errors are apparent in the complete official vote and that the official returns from nine counties will be sent back to county election boards for correction. He also announced that the official figures from 34 counties would have to be verified.

A copy of the demand made on the Secretary of State for a recount on the proposal to endorse the action of certain circumstances, adding that there would be no objection on the Democratic side or by President Wilson to a reservation merely saying that the United States could not make war without action by Congress.

Senator Walsh said he was proud of being of Irish parentage and asked if that was un-American. "The answer is yes," he said, "but whether the relation of this Government to that question is to be changed has some business here."

Quotes Lodge's Speech.

To adopt the reservation as drafted, the Democratic leader said, would be to "desert" the weak nations this country had helped bring into being. Singing out Republican Leader Lodge, he asked what the latter had meant in his Senate speech last December by saying the United States must "restore" Poland.

Did he mean restore it temporarily? Hitchcock asked, "and then cut and run?" Did he mean we should adopt a reservation saying the United States assumes no obligation?"

"I certainly can tell the Senator I did not mean," retorted Senator Lodge. "I did not mean we should maintain armed indefinitely to sustain Poland or any other nation."

The Republican leader also got into the debate after a clash between Senator Walsh and Walsh's co-chairman in a brief speech that his Massachusetts colleague had shaped his course toward the treaty by "purely conscientious motives," and was "as good an American as I know."

The debate developed another spirited clash on the question of Ireland's status under the article. Senator Williams, Democrat of Mississippi, assailing Irish-Americans who opposed the League and Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, replied in a speech charging that the administration had undertaken to deprive him of all Federal patronage because he did not support the treaty without qualification.

Senator Walsh said his advocacy of amendments and reservations had been conscientious and that he regretted to disagree with his Democratic colleagues.

"I know you already plans have been made to take from me every particle of political patronage that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has," he said, adding that as an offspring of an oppressed race, he had felt the league did not give a hearing to subject European races.

"The Senator ought to stand here as an American Senator, not as an offspring of an oppressed race," Senator Walsh said. He added that some opponents of the league were seeking its death with a "bludgeon" and others by poison of observations because of hate of some country beyond the Atlantic."

"The man who cannot put behind him his European derivation," continued Senator Williams, "is unworthy to be an American citizen and thrice unworthy to be an American Senator." The Senator may not know it, and a great many of his hypothesizes may not know it, but you have lost more friends for Ireland during this war than you have gained in 20 years before."

Defends Irish-Americans.

Senator Williams denied that he had attacked the Irish as a race, predicting that the bulk of Americans who were of Irish blood would in the end exert their influence against the Sinn Fein element.

Referring to Senator Walsh's statement that he had been fond of President Wilson, the Mississippi Senator added: "Yes, he was fond of the President when he was a candidate for the Senate."

"Mild" Proposal Defeated.

In the session the Democrats had made another unsuccessful effort to break into the Republican ranks by proposing as a substitute for the committee's reservation one which would exclude the United States from participation in Article 10. ful, placed the coal workers in the position of defying the Government of the United States, and refusing to call off strike, and, aside from the consequences attaching to disobedience of the Federal Court order, many were adverse to considering anything which could be construed as lack of Americanism.

Alexander Howat, president of the Illinois district, remarked to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners district, as they passed newspaper men in the evening: "That was good speech made, Frank. I agree with it fully."

Another delegate said: "It isn't a question of going to jail. These men have no fear of that. What they are debating is the welfare of the United Mine Workers, as affected by the court order requiring the strike to be rescinded. They are debating, too, whether they should take a position that would be a stand against the attitude of the Federal Government."

Demands of the Miners.

The original demands of the United Mine Workers, which brought about the strike of approximately 425,000 bituminous coal miners of the United States, were drafted by the Scale Committee of the Cleveland convention of the organization, held last September, which also adopted the following resolution:

"We recommend that in the event a satisfactory wage agreement is not secured for the central competitive field (Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania), before Nov. 1, 1919, to replace the one now in effect, that the international officials be authorized and hereby instructed to call a general strike of all bituminous miners and mine workers throughout the United States, the same to become effective Nov. 1, 1919."

The main point of the miners' demands included: 40 percent increase in wages, a six-hour day from bank to bank, a five-day week and time and a half for overtime and on Sundays and legal holidays. The final Wage Conference of the operators and mine workers met in Philadelphia, Oct. 19, and adjourned Oct. 21, failing to reach an agreement. The call for the strike at midnight Oct. 31 was issued from the international headquarters of the union, here Oct. 15.

Was Some Opposition.

Although delegated to the meeting of the miners were apparently pledged to secrecy as to details of the proceedings during their protracted sessions, it was learned from a well-authenticated source that there was bitter opposition to compliance with the court's order. One of the most complicating features of the situation, it was said, was the action of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in Washington in declaring its support of the miners' strike, the federation council's statement being used by some as an argument against calling off the strike.

Men in Session 18 Hours.

The general committee had been in session since shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning, taking only brief recesses for lunch and dinner. The proceedings were interrupted during the afternoon session by the appearance of United States Marshal Mark Stoen and his deputies, who served 33 of the officials with copies of the temporary injunction. The writs and the restraining order were made returnable Nov. 20.

During the day approaches to the entrances of the conference hall were carefully guarded by a sergeant-at-arms, and during recesses a man remained on guard in the hall, but in the later hours of the conference the sergeant-at-arms disappeared.

in an automobile with the British-Canadian contingent.

These men were in uniform, most of them wearing the gleaming metallic insignia of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. One was in kilts and tam-o'-shanter. They carried American, British and Canadian flags and replied in the free fashion of the Tommy and the Canadian fighter to greetings from the sidewalk gathering.

Navy Veterans Next.

Next were the "gobs," the petty officers and a few of higher rank in the navy, nearly all in uniform. A banner announced that these service men were members of the United States Naval Veterans' Association.

The Red Cross, heading the war service and relief agencies, had a long section. Maj. George W. Simmons marshaled this part of the line, and the white headresses of Red Cross nurses followed. There were hundreds of women, while many were in the full uniform, with blue cloak and cape. Some of the women were past middle age, and one helped a girl of 9 or 10 years, possibly her grandchild, who was also in Red Cross uniform, to keep up with the procession. Negro women formed a good-sized group among the workers.

The Red Cross recruiting truck, carrying a large red cross standing in each, followed as a reminder to spectators that the Third Roll Call campaign ends tonight.

"There are smiles that make us happy," was heard from the next section, which contained girl workers of the War Camp Community Service. They were followed by the Navy Scouts, with the wooden guns which became familiar in wartime parades by a girls' drum corps from an East side packing plant, the Knights of Columbus workers and the Salvation Army. A wreath of tempting doughnuts was carried by one of the Army lasses.

The red train of the Y. M. C. A. appeared on a number of automobiles, which carried wounded men from Jefferson Barracks. The Junior Chamber of Commerce provided the cars for the accompanying Red Cross nurses.

The Mark Twain Drum and Bugle Corps all in white, and the Irving School Drum Corps kept up a lively tum-tum.

Two national groups near the end of the parade were the Italians, almost hidden by a thicket of large American and Italian flags, and with a sash of red, white and green silk on nearly every other man; and the Greeks, with their mild-hued banner red and white. Groups of servicemen were in each of these contingents.

Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, gray-bearded men in their seventies and eighties, filled a number of automobiles and were greeted with signs of respect and enthusiasm. The Boy Scouts, who aided in every form of home service in war time, were the rear guard of the parade.

The setting was one for a great inspirational meeting. It is doubtful if the "Star Spangled Banner," the second number on the program, ever has been sung in St. Louis with greater volume than came from the throng.

When the speaking began, however, the restiveness of the crowd made hearing difficult. The first speeches were by a group of women under whose leadership the celebration of Armistice day by "sing" throughout the country was brought about—Mrs. Phyllis N. Moore, old president of the National Council of Women, in session here this week; Mrs. David Allen Campbell of New York, chairman of community music of the council, and Mrs. Frank A. Selberg of Akron, O., president of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

There was more vigorous singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Onward Christian Soldiers," but when the singing was concluded it was noticed that some seats that had been filled were vacant.

Lieut. Brown Looked Scarred.

Sergt. Ellis, who won the Congressional Medal for Honor and other decorations in this war; Sergeant Major John H. Quick, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Spanish War, and the Distinguished Service Cross in this was, and Lieut. Sir Arthur White Brown, navigator of the first airplane to cross the Atlantic, were introduced.

Lieutenant-Colonel Robert Burkham dramatically read the order that came to the trenches one year ago at 11 a.m. proclaiming the armistice and ordering that the advances stop. Col. Burkham referred to the remarkable speed of the demobilization and the fact that only 20,000 of the great army of 4,000,000 were not placed in productive industry.

Back on the Job.

"No nation ever equaled that record," Col. Burkham said. "That is why we wear our ribbons, 'Back on the Job,'

Thereafter the exercises became a race to see whether all the speakers could speak while there still was an audience to listen. The speeches of Maj. Simmons of the Red Cross, Dr.

John W. Withers of the public schools, Charles Claffin Allen, who spoke for the arts and crafts exposition, and Carl J. Baer, for the Chamber of Commerce, were cut to two minutes each.

When the program was finished at 1:45 less than one-fourth of the audience that had gathered remained and the noise of the others' departures made hearing virtually impossible.

Civil Divisions of Circuit Court Adjudged for Afternoon.

Each of the 11 civil divisions of the Circuit Court adjourned at noon yesterday, so that employees of the courts might observe Armistice day. The judges made notations in the records that adjournment was taken because the day is the first anniversary of the armistice. The court houses remained open.

PUBLIC BATHHOUSE CLOSED

Shortage of Coal Causes Them to Be Shut Down Indefinitely.

The four public bathhouses operated by the city for the benefit of persons residing in the congested districts, have been closed indefinitely because of the shortage of coal resulting from the miners' strike. The bathhouses are used by about 10,000 persons weekly. They are at Seventh and Soulard streets; Tenth and Clark streets; Twentieth and O'Fallon streets and Garrison and Lucas avenues.

The Soulard swimming pool also has been closed for the winter.

CRAFTS EXPOSITION TO CLOSE TONIGHT

Postoffice Employees to Visit Show—Armistice Day Will Be Auditorium Feature.

The St. Louis Exposition of Industrial Arts and Crafts, in the old Southern Hotel Building, Broadway and Walnut street, which opened Oct. 15 and has been conducted continuously since, will close tonight at 11 o'clock.

"Armistice day" will be the auditorium feature of the last night. The annual parade of the letter carriers will terminate at the exposition. Postoffice employees will visit the exhibits and then present a music program. Postmaster Seigh will deliver an address on "Americanism."

Democratic women of St. Louis were guests yesterday at a tea and reception given at the exposition to afford them an opportunity to meet Mrs. James W. McKnight of King City, recently elected chairman of the Democratic Women's State Committee.

After tea had been served Mrs. McKnight, E. M. Grossman and United States Subtreasurer Vandiver delivered political speeches.

A committee was appointed by Mrs. Fred A. Reid, who presided, to investigate conditions at the Marine Hospital, the action being taken after Mrs. J. F. Murphy of $239 Maple avenue in speech charged that the disabled soldiers in the hospital were "inadequately clothed." Mrs. Reid appointed as members of the committee Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gandy, Mrs. John Rutledge, treasurer of the Women's State Committee; Gaty Pallen, secretary of the Democratic League of St. Louis, and Lawrence C. Kingsland, members of the Democratic City Committee, representing the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Vandiver, speaking for David R. Francis, Ambassador to Russia, who was on the program for the principal address, paid a tribute to President Wilson and the Democratic administration for the successful financing of the war.

Mrs. McKnight characterized the social unrest in some elements of society as "propaganda," unjustified because the country was never more prosperous.

The exposition was promoted by the St. Louis Art League in association with the Chamber of Commerce to promote the arts in industry, and make American products more beautiful, useful and more marketable at the present time. The purpose has been served so well that manufacturers and educators, financiers and business men, are considering plans for establishing a permanent exposition.

The managers of the exposition have been congratulated by the directors of eastern art museums, manufacturers and designers on the success of the enterprise.

GERMANS UNDERSELL AMERICAN COMPANIES IN SOUTH AMERICA

Low Value of Mark as Compared With Dollar Gives Tentative Commercial Advantage.

By the Associated Press.

Buenos Aires, Nov. 11.—The high value of the American dollar as a medium of exchange and the low value of the German mark is enabling German houses to sell goods here cheaper than they did before the war. The price is far below those of American and other allied countries that, for the moment, there is no possibility of competition.

The Germans are experiencing little difficulty in getting their goods to South America. German machines of a certain class are selling at 100 per cent above what they did before the war, yet they are 200 pesos cheaper than they did before the war. The price is far below those of American and other allied countries that, for the moment, there is no possibility of competition.

It has been reported here that German exporters can not ship metals, yet their salesmen are offering copper tubes in competition with United States salesmen and are getting orders because they promise shipment "when possible."

Several American representatives have written to their principals that it is impossible to take orders for American goods as long as the dollar is valuable and the mark is not.

BRITISH NAVY LOST 1069 SHIPS

Admiralty Issues Detailed Statement on War at Sea.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—British naval losses during the war were 1069 vessels, according to a detailed return just issued by the admiralty. Of these 254 were warships and 815 auxiliary vessels of the Royal Navy.

Of the warships, 12 were battleships, three battle cruisers, 13 cruisers, 11 light cruisers (including six sunk at Zeebrugge and Ostend), five monitors, three flotilla leaders, 64 torpedo-boat destroyers and 54 submarines (including seven destroyed at Heligoland to avoid capture).

Only 42 warships were lost in action, 62 fell victims to submarines and 44 to mines. Eleven were destroyed to avoid capture and 28 were lost in collision. Twenty-two were wrecked, five lost by internal explosion and seven by accident while in 28 cases the cause of the loss is listed as "unknown."

And Here's the Big Suit Sale! Nugents

The Second and Greatest of the Series of Sensational Garment Events That Have Astonished the Whole City

Why You Can Buy Fine Suits At Half Price and Less

We are not in business to lose money, nor are we magicians. But if one investigates one finds a cause for every effect.

As indicated in our previous talks, manufacturers anticipated an enormous season in women's garments and prepared with tremendous stocks of women's and misses' apparel. But something happened and the re-orders didn't materialize in September and October.

So we were able to buy dresses very cheap, and coats at sensational reductions, but compared with the values and prices of those garments they almost GAVE US THE SUITS.

The reason is that there is a much longer season for dresses and coats than there is for suits, and by December 1st manufacturers are bending their energies to next Spring's suit production.

Naturally a large stock of Suits is less desirable just now from the manufacturers' viewpoint than either coats or dresses, and that's the reason they were ready to take BIG LOSSES in order to dispose of their heavy overstocks.

We are merely stating a fact when we say that these Suits were bought at fifty cents on the dollar, and less, and that's exactly the way YOU are going to buy them in this Sale tomorrow.

SAYS CONTROL OF NEWS HANDICAPS JOURNALISM

Dean Williams of University of Missouri Addresses St. Louis Newspaper Workers at City Hall.

Control of news sources, lack of ethical standards and low pay for workers are some of the reasons why journalism lags, Walter Williams, dean of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, told the St. Louis Association of Journalists and other newspaper workers in an address at the city hall yesterday afternoon.

Remedies suggested by him were freedom of the press, a conviction among journalists that the profession is one of public service and insistence upon a reasonable qualification for those who enter its service.

"The employment of its workers should be made secure in tenure and attractive in financial return," he said, "and of the workers themselves there should be required the education, training and knowledge desirable for all who lead intelligent life or lead through influence."

New Journalism Characterized.

A new world's journalism is growing out of a new world spirit, he continued. "The new journalism will be the new world-spirit in printed form," said the dean. "Certain it is that it will be a journalism of more general and generous appeal than the old journalism, less narrow and less dishonest in content of matter and in methods of presentation.

It will be more and more a social institution.

Directed by men of sound training, large experience, broad vision and high courage, in the interest of society. Despite many and important exceptions, this is the present tendency of the world's journalism.

"In the Congress of the United States so-called sedition bills, destructive of free speech, have been introduced with much apparent support. Such bills, enacted into laws and enforced, would make freedom of the press a myth. These bills are symptoms of the reaction that must be considered in every movement for world reconstruction. Under their provisions, Christ, if living today, could be convicted for uttering condemnation of whitened sepulchers, who devoured widow's houses, or for his denunciation of scribes and pharisees.

Free Press and War.

"If the press of Europe had been for a century free to print the news uncolored by government influence; if it had been free to discuss in public the machinations of diplomacy, the hideous war would not have come. Certainly national antagonisms were increased and racial hatreds inflamed by the international news served out by official or semi-official sources, the Wolff and Stefanie in Germany, Reuter's in England, the Havas in France, the Kokusai in Japan, the Ministry of the Telegraph—frankly official—in Russia, and others in other lands. The news as thus circulated was seldom the actual truth—it was what the governments wished the people of their own nation and the people of other nations to think was the truth. War took place in the open because—thanks to an enslaved and complacent press—the preparations therefor were carried on in secret. Censorship was an accessory before the colossal crime of war, even if it was not a principal in bringing it about.

Contributions of Franklin.

"But when I recall the contributions to the press' freedom by Franklin and Zenger, by Ritchie and Dana, by Pulitzer and Grady, and the long list of independent American journalists, I do not fear that the race has perished from the earth. The kept press, the controlled press, will never dominate in this good land," he concluded.

A Missouri School of Journalism chapter of the American Journalism Chapter of the American Journalists was born in St. Louis last week. Dean Williams said; and application for a charter has been made to the St. Louis chapter, which is acting in a national capacity.

Following the talk at the city hall Dean Williams was the guest at a dinner at the Planters Hotel given in his honor by St. Louis newspaper men and women.

COUPLE OVERPOWER WOMAN AND TAKE $4000 EARRINGS FROM HER

Man Knocks on Her Chest While Woman Accomplice Takes Jewelry From Her Ears.

A man and woman described as well dressed overpowered and raped a woman in a rooming house at 235A Market street, on the third floor of her home at 8 o'clock last night, the man holding her to the floor while the woman took from her ears diamond earrings which she says are worth $4000 and a purse containing $22.

Mrs. Dwyer told the police. The couple escaped in an automobile.

Mrs. Dwyer said the couple left their machine on Jefferson Avenue and Market street and told her they had been sent by a "Mr. Meyer" to look at a room.

She escorted them to a third floor room. Before she could switch on the lights the man hooked his arm around her throat from behind and bore her to the floor and knelt upon her chest while the woman removed the diamond earring. Mrs. Dwyer wore a brooch which she says is worth $5000 which the robbers overlooked.</p

THREE FEDERAL JUDGES GUESTS OF LAWYERS

Any Who Defy Court When Appeal Is Open Are in Rebellion, Judge Dyer Says.

Judge C. B. Faris, newly appointed Judge of the United States District Court in St. Louis, and his predecessor, Judge David P. Dyer, who remains in service as an extra Judge, were guests of honor last night at the St. Louis Bar Association's first open meeting of the winter at the University Club. Judge George W. English of the United States District Court in East St. Louis also was a guest.

The proceedings in the main were informal, but a serious note was introduced when Judge Dyer referred to the coal miners' strike and warmly praised the Attorney-General of the United States for his stand in announcing that he would rigidly enforce the injunction order of Judge Anderson of Indiana if miners' union officials refuse to call off the strike.

As the miners' strike continues, "We will not obey the orders of the court" when the road is open to a court of appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States, they are in rebellion against our Government."

Judge English and Judge Faris did not touch on the miners' strike in their speeches.

In referring to his attitude on the coal strike Judge Dyer described himself as being like a horse "with his head up and tail over the dashboard."

Fight It Out Now.

"If this thing has got to be fought out we might as well fight it out now," he said.

He told of his service as a member of the bar since 1885 and on the Federal bench for 12 years and pointed an anecdote with the conclusion that "in order to be a Federal Judge it is not necessary to be a dead fool."

Addressing himself to the lawyer members of the association, he told them lawyers ought to know the rights of men without having to consult a book and said he had no use for a lawyer who had to run to the library and consult legal references every time a case was presented to him.

At the time he started to practice, he said, there was a law on the Missouri statute books making it a felony for one man to entice away another's negro wife. He told of a case in which he defended a man accused of this crime and lost the case. His client was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary. After the sentence had been pronounced, a friend of the prisoner went up to him and congratulated him. The convicted man couldn't understand why he should be congratulated, but his friend said: "You're lucky. If you had had two lawyers like Dyer you'd have got 10 years."

Judge Faris Commended.

Judge Dyer was commended by his successor, Judge Faris, as being a man who would do his duty without being swayed by consideration of politics or religion and characteristically crowned the compliment by saying: "A politician-Judge ain't worth a damn."

A number of popular songs were sung at the meeting and a buffet luncheon was served.

Judge Faris also told several stories some of them illustrating how the Federal Judge is sometimes underestimated out of court. He told of going back home after being appointed to the Missouri Supreme Court bench and of being introduced to a farmer who lived just across the line in Arkansas. "This," said the introducer, "is Justice Faris of the Supreme Court." "Well, well," replied the farmer. "I feel almost as old as you are."

SALINAS — puts "pep" in your step!

Do you want to put "pep" in your step? Then—occasionally take Salinas!

Do you want to "wake-up"—to become a 100% man or woman? Again we suggest, occasionally take Salinas!

Do you want to improve your complexion?—take Salinas!

Most of that "tired feeling"—most of those "blue days"—most of your "lack of nerve" and "discouragement" comes, not from the head—but sad to say, from the condition of the stomach and bowels. Too much at a meal, or consume improper combinations of food. Then trouble begins. Chemical action produces pernicious poisons. This kills our nerve—gives us a headache—unfits us for either pleasure or business. Now—corrects our eating mistakes. Salinas is a remarkable combination of four well known salts. It is an effervescent laxative or cathartic according to quantity taken. It cures the poisonous condition of stomach and bowel, and brings body and mind back to normal.

Salinas is endorsed and prescribed by thousands of physicians. It's safe. It's satisfactory. Every user of Salinas likes its results. Your own druggist undoubtedly keeps it. Ask him to send you a bottle (25c—50c—$1.00). You'll find it "made-over." You'll almost "remove mountains." Yes—Salinas actually puts "pep" in your step.

KANSAS CITY CAR FARE CASE DISMISSED BY HIGHEST COURT

In Opinion Given, but Action Affirms Decision of State Court Upholding Commission.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The United States Supreme Court yesterday dismissed appeals of Kansas City officials from decrees of the Missouri Supreme Court upholding orders of the Missouri Public Service Commission increasing street fares in Kansas City to 6 cents. The Supreme Court did not hand down an opinion in the case, but merely dismissed the appeals, thereby affirming the decision of the State Supreme Court, which upheld the utilities commission.

DUPES OF HORSE RACE BETS ASKED TO VIEW PRISONER

Federal Authorities Invite All Persons Swindled in Last Few Years to Have Look at Richard V. Murphy.

IS IDENTIFIED BY THREE MEN

They Testify to Having Lost $38,000 in Four Years—Murphy Suspected of Having Operated in Florida.

Federal authorities are inviting persons who in the last few years have been swindled in the old fake horse race game to look at Richard V. Murphy, whom the St. Louis police captured Saturday as he was about to add the finishing stroke to two more plots in which Robert R. Collins, grocer, banker and pillar of the church in Trenton, Tenn., was to yield $10,000.

Three other men identified Murphy yesterday afternoon as a leading member of gang that, in the last four years, swindled them out of sums totaling $38,000 by the fake racehorse game.

Federal authorities are seeking to determine if Murphy was connected with the operations of a ring which last year operated among the Florida resorts, obtaining large sums.

Identified by Three Men.

James R. Harris, 5933A Wells Avenue, identified Murphy as one of several men who had obtained $10,000 from him in East St. Louis in May, 1916. The method he recounted to the police at that time was almost identical with that employed with Collins.

As was told exclusively in late editions of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, John T. Taylor of Belleville, a former coal op-rate, identified Murphy as one of a gang that obtained $25,000 from him in Kansas City in March, 1916; and Louis G. Hoff, 2316 Itasca street, identified Murphy as one of three men who enticed him into a fake horse race bet in which he lost $3000 at Detroit in March, 1916.

Taylor explained to the authorities that he had never before made public his loss, as he had wished to avoid publicity. After identifying Murphy, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter the details of the swindle.

"I was summoned by telephone to a bank at Belleville Feb. 21, 1916, and there met an affable stranger who introduced himself as Mr. Terry, representing a Western syndicate of capitalists," said Taylor.

Anxious for Options.

"Terry" told the financiers were anxious to get options on some mining property at Bartlesville, just outside of Belleville, and if they succeeded in getting it, to purchase a large tract of land and present it to one of the churches. He said that he had some mine lands near Omaha, Neb., under consideration and induced me to accompany him there and give expert advice. Mrs. Taylor went along.

"At Omaha 'Terry' seemed to know everybody. We were entertained for a week with dinners and theater parties every evening. We had wine and occupied box seats at the best shows. 'Terry's' friends evidently had plenty of cash."

"One afternoon he induced to accompany 'Terry' and two other men to an 'exclusive club' in Omaha. It was located in a fashionable residence building and on the second floor there was a 'private betting room.'

Taylor's description of the "betting room" was identical with the description of the place Collins was taken to in St. Louis County. The room was fitted up with blackboard, cashier's cage, telephone and telephone instruments and "bets" were being received in code."

$25,000 for Good Luck.

"Terry won several thousands of dollars and I was induced to put up to make some bets. It was told that I had won $122,000. Before I could collect my winnings, I was told, I would have to put up $25,000 in cash to show my good faith. I had been betting on credit, but was informed that the rules of the house would not permit the paying off of bets unless the amount wagered was deposited with the cashier. I got the $25,000 and—say I don't want this stuff in the newspapers. I've told it to much of the world."

"There we met 'Terry.' He took my $25,000 and the little tin box and went into an anteroom with Murphy saying that he would count the money to see if it was all there and return in a few minutes. I waited 15 minutes and then went to the anteroom. It was vacant."

E. W. Nitsche, 229 East Houston street, San Antonio, Tex., who had informed the Federal authorities that his father, proprietor of the Busy Bee Candy Co., at San Antonio, had been robbed of $25,000 in a fake stock deal July 7 last, has sent a letter to Postoffice Inspector Price describing the swindle. The letter reached St. Louis today and an effort is being made to connect Murphy with the Nitsche transaction.

Murphy Not Perturbed.

The identification by Taylor and Hoff did not disturb Murphy's repose. When asked if he could be disturbed, he replied: "Not at all. St. Louis County or by Federal authorities, he carelessly tossed a coin and announced: "Heads, Federal authorities, it is."

At the time of the Harris swindle the police arrested a man they had listed in the rogues gallery as a confidence man. Harris looked at it, but said he was not one of the gang that took his $10,000. Harris was approached on the pretext that a man wanted to buy some property which Harris owned on Taylor avenue. The prospective purchaser found to be an elderly man who was in bed in the Illinois Hotel in East St. Louis with boots on. In the interim necessary to complete the deal, Harris was led into believing he had won a horse race, and in producing $10,000 to prove the good faith in which he made the bet. One of the gang got his hands on the $10,000 and slipped from the hotel.

CHARITY EVENT FOR ORPHANS' HOME DEC. 1

Theater Party and Dinner for St. Louis Protestant Institution.

ONE of the smartest society affairs of the season will be the theater party, supper and dance given by the officers and board of managers of the St. Louis Protestant Orphan Asylum, Dec. 1, at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater and Hotel Jefferson.

The board of managers has bought the first and second floors of the theater for the night of Dec. 1. "Chin Chin Chow," with the original New York cast, will be the offering. The theater party will be followed by a supper and dance at Hotel Jefferson. Practically every table has already been reserved, and it is expected that all of the season's debutantes will attend the theater party and dance.

The board of managers of the St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Asylum, which is at Webster Groves, usually give smart and original entertainments for the benefit of their charity, and usually receive generous support from the public, because the public is assured of a worthwhile entertainment.

The asylum was founded 45 years ago, and for a long time occupied a cottage on the outskirts of the city—then Seventh and Morgan streets. In 1869 it was moved to its present location, in Webster Groves. The home is run on the cottage plan and the children have the advantage of living in the country.

Warns Influenza Will Come Back in More Dangerous Form

Dayton, O.—Declaring that people gained nothing from their experience with the ailment in 1918 and 1919, Dr. W. A. Evans, prominent health authority and writer of Chicago, today predicted that the world would again be swept by an epidemic of influenza far more severe and disastrous than last year, when thousands of lives were lost. The only way it can ever be alleviated or exterminated is by following the advice of the medical world.

Influenza can be prevented, last year's results prove that. As a preventive for flu, Turpo has been a pronounced success. Turpo is an effective germicide, combining the old-fashioned remedies of turpentine which has always been known as the best home germicide, camphor and menthol in a pure and potent base. These substances have long been recognized as effective germicides, as well as having really wonderful qualities in relieving colds and congestion. Snuff a little Turpo up the nostril several times a day and the flu germ will have little chance of getting a lodging and breeding place. Many physicians and hospitals use and recommend Turpo, while your druggist has a supply on hand, and use as directed. Last year druggists could not supply the demand. Remember that Turpo is a preventive, not a cure for influenza. Take care of yourself and if, in spite of your precautions you think you have the flu, go to bed at once and call a doctor.—ADV.

DUNSDANY IN LECTURE READS HIS NEW PLAY

Atmosphere is Oriental, With Monarchs and Torture and Ending is Impressive.

"Scene: A long way off. Time: Yesterday."

This was Lord Dunsany's way of indicating to his audience at Mary Institute yesterday afternoon the location of the "lands" where his remarkable short plays have their home.

The Irish playwright-peers appearance, announced as a lecture on "My Own Lands," proved to be chiefly the reading of a new play, and of some shorter pieces, introduced by a talk on books of the drama.

The auditorium in Founders Hall, at the institute, was filled, women forming the larger part of the audience. Some of the women carried copies of Dunsany's plays and books of tales, and took them, after the reading, to the author, who wrote his name in them.

In delivering his talk on the theater, Lord Dunsany stood his high before his audience as black frost. For his readings, he sat. A certain monotony in his reading, rather than in his speaking, made it difficult to avoid missing a word, or even a sentence, occasionally.

Play Has Not Been Acted.

The title—perhaps only a tentative title of the new play, which Lord Dunsany read from manuscript, was "The Compromise of the King of the Golden Isles." The play, he explained, had not been acted, though it had been printed, his dramatic works are primarily for the stage and secondarily for the reader. He asked that, in news accounts of the reading, the plot of the play be not disclosed.

It can be said, however, that the gods dominate the play, but that Dunsany has not brought them visibly upon the stage, as he did in the tremendous climax of "The Gods of the Mountain." Instead, he introduced the deities of the Orient through the utterances of their priests. The play has the Oriental atmosphere given by absolute monarchy, poison and torture. In the reading, it did not appear to have the logical coherence of the best-known of the Dunsany plays, but its ending was impressive.

The longest of the readings from his printed works was "Bermonsey vs. Wurtenburg," a descriptive article on the ruins of the French city of Abert, where there is "no indoors or outdoors." Instead, the building where a sign bears the legend "Taken by the 15th Wurtenburg: Taken by the Bermonsey Butterflies."

Others were "Furrow Maker," an allegory, and "Three Tall Sons," which bore a likeness to the theme of Ibanes' "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." The three sons of Nature were portrayed as War, Famine and Plague.

"The little theater movement," Lord Dunsany said in his opening remarks, "is a movement upward, toward something better than what we are slipping down to."

Morally Happier to Be So.

"Why should I say that the little theater, rather than the big theater, has fine ideals? Merely because it happens to be so. It would be much better if it were the other way about; if the many saw the good plays in the large theaters and the few saw the bad plays in the little theaters.

"There have been great plays in the big theaters. They have served their time and have achieved great things. But they are outward. Their power is a species of tyranny.

"Tyranny is a power ill used, whether it be the power of Caesar or a strike leader. The managers of some London theaters exercise something very much like a tyranny over art. They don't care for art, for they are business men. Their tyranny is exercised under the pretense of giving the public what it wants.

"No one can want the kind of musical comedy that is given in some London playhouses. I have gone to see performances, and I know, being an Englishman, that they are not funny, while the musicians tell me they are not musical.

"I have been asked why I don't build a big theater. I will not do it, because if I put a farthing into any dramatic enterprise, it will be said: 'He's got money, so he can get his plays accepted.' No, I am not going to help the drama any more than I have done. Others, who would like to, cannot."

Most Fight Mean Things.

"It is unfortunate that the big theaters so well. I don't want to throw stones at the managers, for I have not been tempering with them. But we must fight mean things with whatever we have, and the little theater movement offers an ideal, against what tends to become the oppressive tyranny of the big theaters.

"A feeling has followed the war that the arts and his work are to be despised. What good are these dilettante, long-haired, undisciplined people who write plays? The arts tend to be forgotten in war-time, and where art is forgotten, ideals die. When fine ideals die, fine actions will die."

"Art is any work supremely well done. No worker has the right to despise art. Art has no limit, not even our hopes. The art of the drama is the condensation of life."

The titled speaker stopped, in the first 10 minutes of his talk, and asked that the electrical who was experimenting with the large lights, should decide on what he wanted. One of the women on the platform turned off two clusters of lamps which glared in the eyes of the audience, and Dunsany went on with his speaking, and soon afterward was reading in a comparatively dim light.

"I know that I can express the great gratitude of the War Department to the American Red Cross in St. Louis for the service rendered to the men of the Army while in, or passing through St. Louis.

"May I add my sincere hope that the present drive will prove a great success and enable the Red Cross to continue its magnificient work."

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

Simple Method That Enabled Me to Reduce My Weight 15 Pounds Days.

"I was about 20 pounds over weight, reducing rapidly when I decided to lose weight. After investigating I found what I believed to be the safest and most reliable way to do it was to fast. Each morning I would stand in a window and take as deep a breath as possible. I did this for months. My skin was dry and wrinkled, but I became much stronger and more active. It is now six months since I began this method and I weigh 15 pounds less. I can honestly recommend this method to any fat woman or man who wants to lose weight through exercise and dieting. It is not expensive and requires no special equipment. Buy a book on dieting, such as 'How to Eat Right' by Dr. C. E. Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., or any drug store can supply you with the genuine physio-nutra-a small

"There can be no beautiful, healthy, rounded body without firmness. When the firm goes from the blood of women, the roses go from the blood of men. Firmness gives charm and attractiveness department. I always insist that my patients take a walk every day, eat iron-rich metals, iron which often corrodes the stomach and does more harm than good. Not only does iron not stimulate the teeth nor upset the stomach, it will increase the strength and endurance of the body. It is also good for the heart, carries hardened women in two weeks time in many cases. I have never seen a person with most surprising results." HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

Simple Method That Enabled Me to Reduce My Weight 15 Pounds in 20 Days

"I was about 20 pounds overweight and gaining rapidly when I decided to reduce. After investigating, I found what I believed to be the safest and most reliable way to lose weight, and adopted it. It was just like play. Each morning I would stand in an open window and take as deep a breath as I could, hold it and count up to 10, then repeat. I repeated this operation several times. I went down to the drug store and bought a little physio-leaf, which has a strong, invigorating taste to it. It helped to stimulate the liver, and I also took a few grains of physio-leaf after meals and at bed time.

"The effect of this treatment was almost instantaneous. I weighed myself each day. I weighed myself again an improvement in 20 days. I had lost 15 pounds and I felt better than I had for months. My skin was firm and smooth and I now wear a size 10. It is now six months since I used this method and I am still in trim with no indication of gain.

"I can honestly recommend this simple method to any fat woman or man who wants to lose weight. It consists of three wise exercises, appliances or dietary. It is inexpensive and the results are most positive. Enquire of Dr. G. W. Wilson, Irons Co., 100 Madison Avenue, New York City. Dr. Wilson says any drug store can supply you with the genuine physio-leaf at a small cost."

RIGHT TO CRITICISE ASSERTED BY GOMPERS

He Tells Labor Delegates Justice Must Prevail Against Any Temporary Administration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Samuel Gompers speaking for American labor at a meeting last night for delegates to the International Federation of Trades Unions, declared that "we are tied to no administration, but we are free men and propose to exercise the freedom of our judgment." Gompers told the representatives of foreign labor that he did not believe that a true understanding of the coal miners' strike had reached the President because of his illness.

Responding to the American labor leader, Leon Jouhaux, leader of the French labor delegation to the International Federation, declared that "it is the workers of the United States need the assistance of the workers of the other countries they will get it," and he added, "Frontiers cannot separate the interests of workers and private interests cannot separate workers."

Engaged in Great Work.
"We are engaged in the greatest work today," Gompers said, "the greatest that has ever been entrusted to the common people of America—to secure right and justice and a better way of life and the principles of freedom and humanity."

"Wherever and whenever there is an attempt made by the employers as employers or by the Government as government to depart from the fundamental principles of freedom and democracy, it is not only the right but the duty of the men and women of labor to stand up and protest, regardless of what the consequences may be."

Continuing in a lower voice, the Federation chief said:

"We are living in our own time as best we can, but our lives are just a passing instance in the continuity of civilization and the progress of the world, and what matters if you and I are placed in jail because we have attempted to uphold the principles of freedom and justice and democracy? It is better that we should have our own self-respect and hand down to the generations yet to come the principles of freedom and the worthiness to battle for freedom than to die and to live an inglorious life."

Proclaiming American labor to be in thorough accord with American principles and ideals, Gompers added: "We are in accord with our Government when we know that our Government is following out a course of justice and freedom and of human development as expressed by the principle of democracy. When our administration fails to conform to these principles and when our administration for the time being fails to stand for the principles of democracy, then we have no alternative but to assert that American Justice must prevail against any temporary administration of the affairs of our country."

"We are tied to no administration. We are free men and we propose to exercise the freedom of our judgments and our conduct and to criticize or to express ourselves in dissent from the policies pursued."

"We have faith in our cause," Gompers further asserted. "We believe that we are right. Aye, we are convinced that we are in the right and the men and women of labor in American understand, and that the men and women of freedom in the whole world may understand, that the attempt to impose upon our people a condition of affairs that is repugnant to the concepts of right and of justice and of democracy, we, the men and women of labor, will stand true to the highest principles of justice."

Exercise the freedom of our judgments and our conduct and to criticize or to express ourselves in dissent from the policies pursued."

STATE'S CORN CROP
155,312,000 BUSHELS increase for Missouri in 1919 of 21,512,000 over 1918; Report on Other Crops.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 11.—Missouri's 1919 corn crop will amount to 155,312,000 bushels, or an increase of 21,512,000 bushels over 1918, according to a report by A. Logan of the Soil Mgmt. of the Federal and State Crop Reporting Service.

The report says there is an average yield of 27 bushels an acre for the state, up from 26 bushels an acre last year, being reported at 82 per cent, as against 73 per cent for 1918.

The sowing of corn has been practically completed, but some late sowing was prevented by rains, according to the report. More wheat will be sown in Southeast Missouri with a cessation of the rains.

The apple crop, 90 per cent of which is white, is yielding 15 bushels to the acre, according to the information gathered by Logan and Mayes.

The report says:

"The average yield on Missouri farms will average 22 bushels per acre, against 21 in 1918, and a long-time average of 27, with total, 21,512,000 bushels greater than last year. Quality is up 10 per cent, 73 per cent last year, and 78 per cent for 1918."

Amount of last year's crop on hand is small, only 2 per cent, against 10 per cent in 1918, and cribs are well cleaned out.

The acreage to be gathered for grain, 83 per cent of that sated; harvested off by animals, 10 per cent, and silage 10 per cent, with farmers estimating the yield at six tons of silage per acre. Where corn was grown, marketing will cut the price, but little is farmed near the grain. The acreage cut for hogged off by animals, 28 per cent of that planted.

The average price of new corn is around $1.25, with the price ranging as $1 in Northern counties and up to $1.75 in some Southern ones.

Recent heavy rains have delayed planting and damaged the crop, where it has been sown. The flooding along the Gasconade, Meramec and smaller streams, caused heavy losses or carrying away corn in shock and the unusual sight of salvaging corn like driftwood, has been seen in several places. The crop is poor in most counties north of the river. Some farmers are inclined to sell their hogs and hold corn. Fodder in the Southwest is very poor—soiled by recent rain.

"Wheat seedling is practically finished, although many farmers desired to seed more but heavy rains prevented. Southeast Missouri will be harvested in early November. Damaged in Dent and other counties, less than fly in Lafayette and St. Clair, some wheat not yet up. General opinion very decided as to greatest reduced acreage.

Current weight of a measured bushel of grain is considerably less than for several years, with spring wheat light and poor in quality. Oats good in Southern counties and light in the Northwest.

The production of hay is short. A greater area of forage cane has been grown than usual. Crop well matured and harvested in good condition, except portion of cane which in some fields were too wet and are still standing. The average yield per acre of grain sorghum is 4.8 tons per acre. Field yield for grain are three-fourths usual acreage, with 17.5 per cent production and forage 4 per cent of normal on somewhat reduced acreage.

The cloverseed produced only 65 per cent of the usual acreage, yielding 1.5 tons per acre, or about one-half of normal. More orchard grass seed grown than usual. Soy beans yield 14 bushels per acre.

The apple crop indicates 40 per cent production of full crop at 50 per cent quality. Number of apple trees in the State only half that of 1918. Farmers continue to cut them down and farm orchards are more dismantled each year. Pear crop not more than 25 per cent of normal production, 25 per cent last year and 40 per cent average, 87 per cent quality.

Grapes 76 per cent production, and quality 87 per cent.

"Potatoes 75 bushels per acre, against 85 last year and 65 average, totaling 4,800,000 bushels, or a million less than 1917. Sweet potatoes 100 bushels per acre, against 92 last year, and 83 for average, producing 2,200,000 bushels less than 1917. Sorghum, 55 gallons per acre, state total, $1,000,000.

Farm work is at a standstill—carts and field equipment are out of use. Very little fall plowing. Pastures better than usual at this time. Most livestock healthy, hog feeding general with but little interest in cattle. Farmers much disinterested with indifferent help. Labor shortage more apparent than real."

KANSAS CORN BELOW AVERAGE

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 11.—The Kansas corn crop this year will amount to $4,365,000 bushels, according to estimates by Edward C. Paxton, for the Bureau of Crop Estimates at Topeka. This is based on the first estimates of actual yield taken this year and is very close to the amount forecast from the condition of 45 per cent received Oct.

It was $20,842,000 received last year, but 41,718,000 bushels less than the 10-year average. In only four years since 1874 has Kansas produced less corn.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public officials, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Teachers' Salaries.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In behalf of St. Louis' public school teachers, I would like to say a few things favoring the increase in school taxes which will be voted on Nov. 11, 1919, as so few people realize the necessity of this increase, so in these few lines I will try to enlighten them why they should go to the polls Tuesday and vote "Yes."

First of all, the taxpayers of St. Louis do not pay as much per year for school taxes as any of the small, outlying towns, namely, Maplewood, Jennings, Kirkwood, Ferguson or Clayton, whose taxpayers pay from $1 to $1.75 per $100 valuation, while St. Louis school taxes are only 60 cents per $100 valuation per year.

Now, take into consideration the time and money spent to become a teacher. The least time is 10 years, and during that time they are earning no salary whatever.

There is another reason why our teachers should be considered. Very few of them ever get married but spend their whole lives in the interest of their work. Even now I meet with teachers who taught me 13 or 14 years ago, and who doubt are at present teaching the children of some of the readers of this letter.

We will take as an example a kindergarten teacher, who has been teaching for five years add on her 10 years' school tax, the compare her salary of $6.50 per day for 200 days, or $1300 per annum, with the salary of an eighth grade graduate who has spent 15 years with some commercial house.

During the 10 weeks' vacation period the teachers do not receive any salary at all, and then when they do go back to work they have 5 weeks for their pay, making 15 weeks in all in which they receive no pay.

Let me show you what might happen if we do not increase their salaries. First of all, the present teachers would start to find better positions in other places; then their places would have to be filled by less competent people; then the young ladies training to be teachers would become disatisfied with their outlook, and they, too, would jump to the other towns and get married, and the public would then face the terrible disaster of not having enough teachers to educate their children properly so as to make good citizens of them.

The St. Louis educational system is one of the finest in the world and people come from all parts of the world to investigate, then go back to their native countries to try and educate their children like St. Louis. So let us all go to the polls Tuesday and vote "Yes," that we may keep up the high standard we have reached, and so that our children can have the best educational advantages to be had anywhere on earth. Truly yours, Patron Member of the King's Highway School Parents and Teachers' Association.

A Taxpayer's View.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I am a constant reader of the Post-Dispatch, and will you kindly say in your paper that I am a property owner and willing to pay more tax providing every family is assessed for it and not only property owners. I have no family and school tax is the highest, and the majority of us are not assessed for it and get the benefit of schools and don't have to pay anything. Everybody ought to be assessed more on personal property, then it would reach everyone and teachers could get more; then everyone could vote yes.

SUBSCRIBER.

Proposed City Limits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
While we are at it let us help them some more by making the boundary or city limits $200 north, $200 south as well as $200 west.

D. H. G. GROSBY.

A Correction.

My attention has just been called to a reference in your paper of Oct. 29 to the receipt of a consignment of 16,185 Government seal skins at Seattle, Wash., and a further reference that these skins were to be sent to St. Louis to be dressed and dyed by the secret English process brought here a few years ago from London.

It is true that a large consignment of seal skins aggregating in number 25,000 has recently arrived from the Pribilof Islands, and it is also true that the Gibbs & Lohn Dressing and Dyeing Co. of St. Louis will handle these skins, and prepare them for market, as they have done with all the Government seal skins for a long time. It is one of the great and growing industries of the country.

The article, however, inadvertently was entirely mistaken as to the process which is used in connection with the preparing of these raw skins for the market. The St. Louis company uses a method of its own and a dye of its own invention and preparation. I respectfully request that you give the contents of this letter publicity equal to that of the erroneous statement. Very truly yours,

P. B. FOUCHE.

President Gibbs & Lohn Dressing and Dyeing Co.

LAW AND ORDER WIN.

The decision of the General Committee of the United Mine Workers of America to obey the mandate of Judge Anderson of the United States District Court by calling off the coal strike is a victory not only for the Government and for law and order, but for the miners. The officials proved by their action in obeying the court and conforming to law that they are law-abiding citizens and true Americans, moved by the spirit of liberty under law which has created and maintained our great republic as the exemplar of organized democracy.

"We will comply with the mandate of the court," said Acting President John L. Lewis. "We do it under protest. We are Americans. We cannot fight our Government."

These words will ring throughout America and around the world as a new and splendid pledge of loyalty to free government under law and to the principles of Americanism which assure liberty against anarchy. They are a standard raised by labor in a great crisis, in which the interests of labor and the safety of the country were at stake. They set an example which all sorts and conditions of men in America, from the lowest to the highest, the poorest to the richest, should emulate.

To that fruition the world must confidently press forward. Today, a year after the close of the struggle, there is, undoubtedly, a widespread disappointment in the apparent barrenness of result. Avarice and selfishness and calculating partisanship have come brazenly back to mock the splendid unity and exalted purpose which we attained in the stress of peril. But these things shall pass.

Nov. 11 is one of the rubric days on the calendar of humanity. The victory which Justice and Liberty consummated on that day is not going to be lost. Time will be needed to translate the hopes of the world into realities. With old enemies and new greeds many battles may have to be fought, but they will be fought and won. Again the strength of the world—if its head and heart and arm—must be dedicated to the task of proving that these dead have not died in vain. The annual message of Armistice Day will help to inspire us for this work. And by these testaments we shall inherit.

CLEVELAND'S BLUNDER.

The action of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce in attempting, by vigorous propaganda, to dissuade other cities from sending delegates to the session of the American Mining Congress, to be held in St. Louis next week, is hard to characterize. It is an echo of a school of competition which has been condemned as unethical and supposedly had disappeared.

In the hope of making the session of the American Mining Congress as serviceable as possible in a broad way, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce planned an industrial conference as a feature of the convention and had invited other cities to participate in the effort by sending representatives. This plan seemed to fit logically into the occasion because of issues now confronting the mining industry as a whole, because of the ability of the regular delegates to the Mining Congress to discuss such questions, and because of the high character of the special delegates to this convention, chosen, as they have been, by President Wilson and by the Governors of the various states.

The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce apparently entertained a contrary opinion. It felt the calling of such a conference was untimely, in view of the recent failure of a similar body that met at Washington at the President's call. Cleveland also felt that the method of inviting other cities to send delegates was absurd. And it undertook to defeat the plan by notifying the Chambers of Commerce of other cities that the Cleveland Chamber had declined the invitation.

It is impossible for St. Louis to believe that such action expresses the sentiment of Cleveland. This city, indeed, is reluctant to believe that the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce approves such tactics. We prefer to regard it as an exhibition of offensive individual officiousness which the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce will know how to disavow.

A vote for increasing the school tax is an important feature in the proper observance of Armistice Day.

GROCERS AND POETS.

"It is ludicrous to treat art as a business," said Lord Dunsany, in an interview with the Post-Dispatch, "just as it would be to treat business as an art. The grocery business, for instance."

The Irish poet, we believe, is wrong. The business he cited to illustrate his point was ineptly chosen. Art does wonders for the grocery business. The grocery store of the good old days—and not so very long ago, either—is a sad and squalid place. Verily, it was of the earth earthy. It supplied animal needs and made little, if any, effort to be attractive. Often enough, the grocer, now obsolete, seemed to have a genius for making his place repellent.

The grocery store today is an interesting picture. Frequently its window displays intrigue the eye. Its whole arrangement reveals an effort to please. In all this there is something more than compliance with our modern sanitary regulations. The grocer has become something of an artist. He has achieved beauty and charm where once there was neither. And that is a pretty good definition of art—to bring beauty into life.

And it has paid. But art has no quarrel with success justly earned. And as business has found that art pays, so art will find that business will pay, that business can serve art. The greater part of business is obviously dependent upon art for profitable trade. Let us brush aside our prejudices against the art of trade and look at Lord Dunsany as a traveler with goods to sell. It happens that his wares are very precious. But that is all the more reason why they should be sold. The larger the sale the greater the profit to the public. He himself probably is quite indifferent to the effects of this lecturing tour on his personal fortune. But the things he had wrought with his imagination in those far lands of fancy which he delights to call his own are things the world needs, just as much as it needs groceries, and if the application of business principles can stimulate the distribution of Dunsany's products, then business proves its place in art. Business can bring art into the everyday life of people.

Art and business may not be affinities, but they can be excellent friends, mutually helpful, and by their association and companionship they can render a bigger and finer service to people. That is the vital point.

ARMISTICE DAY.

St. Louis is today observing the first anniversary of Armistice Day with fitting program. The formal parade has brought forth for review the fighting units of our armed hosts and the organizations that in sustaining association, shared much of the hazard and many of the hardships of our warriors. There has been music, memorial and triumphant, and in eloquent speeches the sacrifice of those who died has had its tribute and the gallantry of the living its acclaim. And there have been prophecies of the fruition which shall come to the world from that sacrifice and gallantry.

To that fruition the world must confidently press forward. Today, a year after the close of the struggle, there is, undoubtedly, a widespread disappointment in the apparent barrenness of result. Avarice and selfishness and calculating partisanship have come brazenly back to mock the splendid unity and exalted purpose which we attained in the stress of peril. But these things shall pass.

Marriage No Longer the Definite Object of Women's Existence

English Girls Hold Their Own in Busy Marts of Trade; They Expect No Preferential Treatment. They Now Consider Marriage of Secondary Importance.

Exclusions of Mrs. Monica Ewer, an English Dramatic Critic, Who Recently Arrived in America and Whom the Post-Dispatch Has Asked to Explain the Cause of the Husband Shortage in England.

By MONICA EWER.

"You will die unless you do. Find me a mate to whisper to."

Sings James Stephens. In that case, in what a bad position are the women of England, faced always with a husband scarcity, now made much greater by war deprivations.

All sorts of daring and desperate solutions suggest themselves, from polygamy to colonial plantation! But nature seems always to effect a constant readjustment which carries with it some compensation. The "daughters of the newer Eve" have in some measure exchanged the wedding ring for the attache case. Marriage has lost its old-time connotation. With the war has come the death of the drawing room and the independence of woman. Gone are the days of—

"Bridge at dawn,
The clothes you wear—or do not wear—
The ladies' leap-frog on the lawn
And dyes and drugs and pettits vêtements."

Woman has flowed into industry. There are no jobs she has not undertaken. Our khaki brigade were Wives and Wrens and Waacs and became an integral part of the army. At home we had women conductors, women van drivers, women porters, women on the land and the "one-man business" was turned over to the wife. There is nowhere in England now, where you do not see women, and they are as ready to tend for themselves as the men. They get no preferential treatment, but they can hold their own. One would be hard put to it, today, to find the young lady that formerly had to be "seen home."

The war has done for feminism what could only have been accomplished at any other time by years of patient toil. They received from man his rights and did not have to wait for his generosity.

The war took the suffrage in its stride. Above all, the war gave the women work. Work for all classes. It removed marriage as the definite object of their existence. It relegated it to a secondary place.

This new discovery of work has two very definite factors. There is, first of all, the purely practical question. The middle-class woman has now found that she can be self-sufficient. She does not need to man to earn her bread and butter. "Marriage as a Trade" is a thing of the past.

But the second factor is still more important. Women have found that after all work is the best play in the world. That great class of women who had hitherto been idle, rushed to it from the boredom of their drawing rooms. They have seen their job, and are delighted with the new sense of companionship. They won respect. The woman who was not a wage earner was out of it. Parents who had hitherto considered it "infringement" for their daughters to do anything useful began to change their minds.

There is another factor in the field. Looked at fairly, the accessories of marriage today are not very attractive. While marriage does not offer any particular independence, it offers a great many very definite worries. One no longer looks outward for a little girl with her sweet suburban home, with her clever little maid, making delicious dishes for next to nothing. The little wife and her bread today are walking despairingly from one house agent to another. For those who can afford such things, there are no maids. Not only do the meals and the coal cost nightmare sums, but they are hard to get. Remember, an ounce and a half of butter a week per head is the ration. The young mother grows more and more worried as to how to nourish the brood with next to no butter and milk at 11 pence a pound. She looks back at the days when her greatest worry was that she would five minutes late at the office, if she didn't like her new hat.

But there are two very important aspects of marriage which we have not yet considered. We have been dwelling on the material side. Let us turn to the romantic. For still "The song of lovers—who know how"

Twinkled up from place and time."

But this is not quite disengaging. Even the most ardent and probably always marry for the sake of a particular man, seeing perhaps all that marriage entails, and seeing it with distaste, but ready to go into it for love.

But more important still, there is the woman's desire to be a mother. That, too, we must face fairly. Nietzsche's ideal of a perfect woman was that she should be "as a cow." That will now never be realized. That women love little children very much. Those nice girls would like to be mothers is also true. But it is only with girls, who have nothing else to think of that motherhood becomes an obsession. There are still a great many babies in the world. As there are even a few unwanted ones, a redistribution is always possible.

But there is another side to the question. I know a great many young people who, since the outbreak of the war, have decided that they do not feel justified in bringing a child into a world, where there is little beauty behind and little hope ahead.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Mr. Fox and the Grapes.

Mr. FOX could not climb; he did not intend to give them anything for getting the grapes.

One morning Mr. Fox had his grape wine all made and poured into bottles which he placed in the window to cool while he made his jelly. Billy and Teddy saw the bottles and back home they ran. When they returned they brought a big jug filled with vinegar and emptying the wine out of Mr. Fox's bottles, they filled it with vinegar and off they ran.

Not long after, when Mr. Fox had finished his jelly, he took the jug and cool grape wine enough taste good, he sat down by the window and taking up the bottle began to drink.

It took a good long, deep drink and then he dropped the bottle and howled.

Teddy and Billy Bear had been waiting to hear this noise and they came running up to the window. "Did you call us, Mr. Fox?" they asked very sweetly; "we thought you wanted to give us the honey."

But Mr. Fox was jumping about on his hind legs and holding his stomach and making so much fuss he could not answer.

"What is the matter, Mr. Fox?" asked the mischievous little fellow. "were those grapes sour like the ones your great-great-grandfather did not get?"

Mr. Fox did not reply; he was fatigued, but when he felt better he looked under the window where the bottles stood and saw on the ground a big dark spot, and he wished he had been honest with Teddy and Billy Bear and not treated them so badly.

"When will we get the honey?" asked the little fellows.

"Oh, some day when you are passing stop in," said Mr. Fox, all careless like, as if any day would do.

The next morning bright and early Teddy and Billy called at the door of Mr. Fox's house, but he told them he was too busy to stop and get the honey just then, and they could call again.

They were good-natured little fellows and did not mind, but when they called another time and Mr. Fox gave another excuse and no honey they made up their minds he

CHARMING FRENCH HATS GIVE FINISH TO THE COSTUME

Paris Draws on the East for Turban Inspiration, but Is Sufficient unto Herself in the Revival of the Evening Chapeau.

THE crowning glory of a woman is her hat. So say the Paris modistes who have, this autumn, quite outdone all previous efforts, and have managed thereby to delightfully complicate the selection of the new hat.

To begin with, there are the turbans, designed with special reference to their affiliation with the tailleur or the trotteur type of dress. Their inspiration is from the East, and distinctive nationalities and cults are discernible in the very folds and twists that raise them from the file of the commonplace to the rank of the unusual and unexpected. The Hindu turban has been in evidence for several months, but this fact will not detract from the beauty of the head covering characteristic of the followers of Buddha. The original white has been changed into hues and tones more in keeping with Western ideas and brown is particularly dressed, sometimes in conjunction with fur, with satin or with metal cloths.

Lewis has signed several of the most brilliant of the Indian turbans. There is one deserving special mention, which is a crown of kolinsky and a swathed brim—if such may be called—of twisted folds of brown maline and cloth-of-gold. At one side there is posed a shoulder-sweeping spray of paradise—the contribution of Paris of the Modern of India the Ancient. Suzanne Talbot has likewise included the Eastern turban in her collection. It is true that she has taken artistic license with the original, but the inconsistency is so charmingly plausible that one's father grateful for it, though otherwise.

Talbot reverses the usual order of things by swathing the crown and making the snug little brim severely plain. An old-world tinge is given to this modern chapeau by the use of oxidized metallic tissue, and it is finished with a perky feather which stands out from the back of the brim.

Then there is the model that undoubtedly is the latter-day under-study for the Cossack turban.

She looks back at the days when her greatest worry was that she would five minutes late at the office, if she didn't like her new hat.

But there are two very important aspects of marriage which we have not yet considered. We have been dwelling on the material side. Let us turn to the romantic. For still "The song of lovers—who know how"

Twinkled up from place and time."

But this is not quite disengaging.

Even the most ardent and probably always marry for the sake of a particular man, seeing perhaps all that marriage entails, and seeing it with distaste, but ready to go into it for love.

But more important still, there is the woman's desire to be a mother.

That, too, we must face fairly.

Nietzsche's ideal of a perfect woman was that she should be "as a cow."

That will now never be realized.

That women love little children very much.

Those nice girls would like to be mothers is also true. But it is only with girls, who have nothing else to think of that motherhood becomes an obsession. There are still a great many babies in the world. As there are even a few unwanted ones, a redistribution is always possible.

But there is another side to the same pattern is a turban that claims kinship with the rakish cap worn by bluff King Hall, immortalized along with that royal personage himself in the legend of Robin Hood.

He who was poor could pass for rich.

Henry VIII of England. The cap of the latter type bears the signature of Lewis, and despite the fact that its appellation sets it apart as of English origin it is really Oriental—as it should be when one reflects that Henry was something of an Oriental himself, in the management of his household at least. The hat has a puffed band between crown and bandeau freely slashed over a white satin foundation contrasting markedly with the black velvet of band and feather which stands out from the back of the brim.

It is said that already there is a demand for these exquisite hats of lace, whose close contour is round rather than long, trace their ancestry to the turbans of the Muscovites.

Then, with permission of the East, West, the broad bands of velvet that bind the forehead are spread here and there to indicate the use of a contrasting material, such as metallic brocade, fur or Chantilly lace. And somewhat after the same pattern is a turban that is so high and straight is its contour, for so high and straight is its contour.

This artist has devised an airy trifles which crown is of black maline, cut low like a cap rather than a hat, and with a brim extension of delicate Chantilly lace, also black, stiffened, but when made of broad ribbons, but when made of broad ribbons arranged in uncompromisingly straight loops there is something infinitely attractive about this adaptation of the headgear of the Tartar. work this week, Hafner and Hausman, who have held the wing assignments all season, will be either switched to new positions or relegated to the sidelines.

Changing Horses in Mid Stream.

Such a situation coming at this stage of the season is as unexpected as it is serious. When stock was taken in the early workout days, end positions were considered to be the next best fortified to tackles. However, the job-holders have fallen down and Pike-way alumni and undergraduates see no need for a change, as well as Red and Green coaches.

Emberton, the end and possibility, was working for some time when he has filled in at this position and at halfback throughout the season, seems to be a logical man. Although he is supposed weak at receiving passes, he is a man tackler and has that foot-intuition which qualifies him diagnose plays.

Kremer was yesterday placed on end, a position which he played in 1917. This year he has worked understudy to Marquard at center but the fact that he is now carrying the end signals points to a change in his role.

Others Being Tried.

White, first subquarterback; Calum and Harvey also took their turns at running, while the rest of the backs stationed at ends. Even Oscar Zink, who played second half of the Drake game, was trying out at one of the other ends. All of this means that Emberton, finally, decided that there must be a bolstering on outside of his line. Certainly he would not wantonly experiment with the Tiger "stationary" only five days

It may be remembered that the hard shakeup last week resulted in big improvement in the work of both Baile and Kurkus. These two men have been the soft spots in the team during the entire season. As soon as Zink, Welsh and Cohen entered on the scene as logical candidates, they braced; and Saturday work was flawless.

Yesterday, the team was for a time scattered at fullback. Capt.
McGraw being switched to halfback. It is certain that a new backend combination will be needed at Missouri, because of Bergman, Neale, Green, or others showed ground-gaining ability when the Bulldogs so far as a new substitute will have to be developed.
McGraw is a fine line plunger, but an arranger of attacks, give the end team three line smashers and one, with the exception of Conrad, who could skirt the ends. It will make the Piker attack too dangerous.

Whitely Tried at Halfback.

Another lineup trial was with Gil Whitely at a half and Griesedieck filling his fullback duties. Whitely is right, but he is fast, has a good head, and good enough skill to be a secondary defense as-Decker was tried at a guard position for a while, but it is hardly believed. Coach Rutherford will make any switch in the center of the line at this late stage. The team went through a lengthy line drill yesterday, while the various formations, taught by Gordon Beck, were observed by the Tiger-Nebraska contest. The near team will probably be sent out the varsity in scrimmage this week.

Victory Over M'Govern Will Put M'Mullen in Top Flight

Ambitious Local Boxer Will Seek Go With Winner of Loadman-Kabakoff Contest, if Successful Tonight—Zulu Kid-Asher and Anderson-Witt Bouts Both Headliners.

By John E. Wray.

JOE McMULLEN, who has had a difficult time graduating into a boxing event of big league proportions, due to bad fortune, will make his bow in an event worthy of his mettle, tonight, when he opposes Benny Mc-

McMullen was only a short time ago slated to oppose Harry Kabakoff in the feature of a local show. The day before the contest Joe was sent to bed by the doctor and told to remain there. The bout was

Last week Joe was again scheduled to box, this time at the South Broadway A. C., where he was to have appeared against Kid Bandy in the feature event. But Bandy spurned Joe's chance by injuring a hand in his fight with Kabakoff. McMullen and McGovern have in the past boxed often together in workouts and is thoroughly familiar with the other's style. Nevertheless as the bout is an important one to both, the incentive is there for an 18-karat battle.

McMullen brings to the encounter a head, a good punch and cleverness, and a sense of gameness. McGovern is an experienced boxer who has fought many of the best featherweights in this section. At one time he was headed for Johnny Kilbane's crown, it was thought; but an operation for appendicitis put him out of the ring for several months.

McMullen Is Ambitious.

If McMullen wins this contest with the winner of the Loadman-Kabakoff event will be sought by Otto Richter, who is now looking after McMullen's interests.

Although the McMullen-McGovern bout is the feature of the program at the Coliseum, it has little advantage in point of interest over either of the two that precedes it on the program. Young Zulu Kid, sturdier and stronger than ever in his bantamweight career, will engage the American Expedietary Force champion "Baby" Asher in an eight-round go in the semi-

Moran No Match for Bob Martin

Inter-Allied Champion Beats Former St. Louis Boxer in Three Rounds.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11.—

One of the best heavyweight bouts ever staged in this state, Bob Martin, the heavyweight champion of the allied armies, knocked out Jack Moran of St. Louis here last night in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Moran took the aggressive at the first ringing of the bell, but was quickly driven to the defensive by the slugging tactics of the army champion.

Soldiers have two big men, Sarge and Private, for the full three minutes of the first round they stood toe to toe with Moran wobbling many times. Not once did he go to the floor.

In the second round the heavyweight champion was floored for the full count, each time arising full of fight and stepping into a slugging bee. His strength waned and in the third he was easily victim to the hard-hitting Martin.

Twice Moran took the count of nine in the third chapter before Referee George Barton waved Martin to his corner. Charlie White of Chicago, won by a decision from Mike Paulson of this city upsetting the dope, as the local boy was counted out to win inside the limit.

Farrell, former heavyweight champion of the Northwest, won in four rounds from Bud Fisher of St. Paul. These men scaled around the 220-pound mark and appeared as giants beside the third man in the ring, James Moran, who was won from Fal Moore in the other feature bout.

The attendance was the best here in three years.

Ollie Fink, a former Municipal Leaguer, is one of the best halfbacks in the country, and probably the best in the Midwest.

He surprised the talent in the last two weeks by appearing in a pair of knickerbockers. Kavanagh still gets around with the best of them, although it is a long time since he played the game.

Penalty Kicks Numerous.

Penalty kicks were numerous in the double-header at Cardinal Field Sunday. There were three in the Innisfail-Sullivan game and one in the contest between the Screw Co.-Miller battle. One of the kicks was stopped, that by Dave Barnett of the Irishmen.

Cliff Brady, forward of the Scullins, set a season's record when he counted four goals in the clash with the Innisfails. The previous high mark was three established by Mitchell the week before.
